Purpose
You may request an exceptional circumstances review if the following applies to you:
• You withdrew completely from studies after receiving full-time OSAP funding.
• You had to withdraw because of an exceptional circumstance beyond your control.
• One or more of the following is the result of your withdrawal:
  • You have an OSAP overpayment in your current study period.
  • You have an overpayment restriction preventing you from receiving OSAP funding.
  • Your OSAP grants have been, or will be, converted into loan.

If the review is approved, you may be eligible for future OSAP funding and/or any grants converted to a loan will be stopped or reversed.

Definition: Exceptional circumstances
The ministry considers an exceptional circumstance to have occurred if there has been an unexpected event that is beyond your control and temporarily prevents you from performing the daily activities necessary to attend postsecondary studies.

Exceptional circumstances include the following:
• An event that seriously aggravates or causes a relapse to an existing disability or medical condition.
• Diagnosis of a new disability or medical condition.
• Serious injury or surgery.
• Unexpected parental leave.
• Unexpected loss of housing due to fire, flood, etc.
• Unexpected leave due to family crisis.
