Section B: Required documentation

Part 1: Canadian non-taxable income was greater than zero

You must provide your completed form along with documents issued by the agency, organization or government department recording your 2018 annual non-taxable income information:

- If the non-taxable income is from child-support payments, you must also provide a copy of your separation agreement or court order detailing the amount and frequency of the support payments.
- If you are a Status Indian who earned 2018 income on a First Nations Reserve in Canada, you must provide a copy of your 2018 T4 slip showing the amount in Box 71 or a letter from your employer (on the employer's letterhead) that specifies your total amount of 2018 income earned while working on a First Nations reserve.

Part 2: Foreign income (non-Canadian source) was greater than zero and not reported to CRA

You must provide your completed form, along with the following documentation as applicable:

- Proof of your 2018 income from a foreign (non-Canadian) source with documentation issued by that country's government/tax agency. Working copies of tax documents and/or tax returns are not acceptable.
- Official documentation from your employer that specifies the gross income (before any deductions) you received in 2018. The documentation must be on the employer's letterhead or other official format.

If your 2018 foreign income was from self-employment, investments, rental income or other means, you must provide documentation confirming the source and amount of your income. Acceptable documentation could include bank statements, letter(s) from a financial representative, lease agreements, and/or proof of rent income. This applies only if you are living outside of Canada and have not claimed your 2018 income to CRA.

If you are unable to provide your documentation by the deadline listed on page 1, you can submit an affidavit that includes the following:

- The reasons why you are unable to provide the required documentation.

Definition: Affidavit

A commissioner of oaths is generally available at courthouses, community legal clinics, municipal or township offices, and law offices.
